Forecast for Thursday 29 Jul 2021

Weather: Thick cloud cover through morning will bring a few outbreaks of rain to some ranges, most likely the Cairngorms. Cloud will break across the Perthshire and Ochil Hills later morning leading to a warm day with isolated showers developing here. Thicker cloud persisting across much of the Cairngorms as well as the Angus and Aberdeenshire Hills

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: 20%, improving 70% across the south.

Visibility: Cloud will be extensive above 500-700m across all ranges leading to fog conditions above modest heights through morning with some limited improvement by afternoon. Afternoon showers will briefly limit visibility to neighbouring slopes but will move through relatively quickly.

Met Office Aberdeen Meteorologist's View

Some poor visibility in the north and west. Afternoon showers may be on the sharp side.

Forecast for Friday 30 Jul 2021

Weather: A bright and dry start will give way to some sunshine as well as the odd shower developing by afternoon. A band of thicker cloud will sink southwards through evening and bringing some patchy rain while the southern ranges stay dry.

Maximum wind: Northwest 5-15mph.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: 80% falling 20% from the north through evening.

Visibility: Cloud will generally be above summits through the bulk of the day, falling to 300-500m from the north through evening, bringing a return to fog conditions.

Temperature: Glens: 12-14C rising 17-19C.
At 800m: 9-12C.
Freezing level: Well above summits.
